Overview

Who makes lead-acid batteries in Brazil?

IBER quickly represented a large share of the Brazilian lead-acid battery manufacturers — by 2018, 75% of the lead-acid battery sales in Brazil were from companies represented by IBER (largely an effect of the economic concentration of a few states with ToCs like Sao Paulo), and it represents almost all major manufacturers and importers today. 15.

When did lead-acid batteries need to be certified in Brazil?

On June 14th, 2012, INMETRO (Brazil's National Institute of Metrology, Standardization and Industrial Quality) issued INMETRO Ordinance No. 299/2012. The ordinance established that all lead-acid batteries for vehicles sold in Brazil needed to be certified, and their manufacturers and importers needed to be registered with INMETRO.

Are lead-acid batteries safe in Sao Paulo?

In 2015, Sao Paulo's Environmental Secretary passed Resolution No. 45/2015, which created reverse logistics requirements for products sold in the state that were potentially environmentally hazardous, including lead-acid batteries. On December 21st, 2016, a new term of commitment for lead-acid batteries went into effect.

Are used batteries enforceable in Brazil?

(Under Brazilian law, customers are theoretically required to return their used batteries to retailers, but this is practically unenforceable.) Per the authors, they broadly seemed to follow best practices around ULAB storage (obviously, selection bias here).

Is ULAB recycling a source of lead poisoning in Brazil?

Brazil doesn't have national blood lead level surveys, but there also appears to have been broad concern in academic literature about ULAB recycling as a source of lead poisoning in Brazil since the early 2000s. 1 This is a relatively short summary of the laws associated with Brazilian ULAB recycling regulation.

Why do Brazilian battery manufacturers refuse to buy new batteries?

The biggest is that most major Brazilian battery manufacturers refuse to take orders for new batteries without a guarantee that the buyer will return an equivalent amount of scrap. Manufacturers and importers also offer better pricing and payment terms to distributors who return more scrap.
