Thailand Photovoltaic Power and Energy Storage System

Overview

What's going on with rooftop solar in Thailand?

Rooftop solar is also expanding fast, with the quota for public installations rising from 50 MW to 200 MW, plus an additional 50 MW dedicated to Bangkok. These changes reflect not just ambition, but momentum. Read Also: The Promise of Thailand Renewable Energy Initiatives.

What is Thailand doing with solar energy?

Flagship solar energy projects in Thailand are becoming increasingly innovative: the state utility, EGAT, is tendering a 24 MW floating solar array at Ubol Ratana Dam, the first phase of a 2.7 GW hydro-floating solar hybrid program that avoids land-use conflicts while boosting reservoir efficiency. Policy momentum is catching up with engineering.

Why is Thailand relying on more than just solar?

To close this gap, Thailand is relying on more than just solar. The government's Alternative Energy Development Plan (AEDP) promotes energy diversification, including storage systems and emerging technologies like green hydrogen. These strategies are designed to not only boost generation capacity but also ensure energy stability and resilience.

Is solar energy a profitable investment in Thailand?

Solar energy in Thailand has crossed the line from a promise to a profitable imperative. Costs of renewable energy sources are now lower than those of coal and competitive with gas, with capacity growing at a rate of 20% annually. Policy signals, from 400 MW of community-solar quotas to a 51% renewable goal, are lining up behind the technology.

Why is energy storage important in Thailand?

Recognizing the significance of energy storage in addressing intermittency and volatility, the country has included energy storage in its energy policies.

Sungrow, a leading solar inverter, and energy storage system supplier, is at the forefront of Thailand's solar-plus-storage revolution.

Can Thailand expand its solar energy capacity?

Solar Energy in Thailand has jumped from a policy aspiration to an active economic strategy. Over the past decade, the kingdom has shifted from worrying about dwindling domestic gas reserves to determining how quickly it can expand its solar energy capacity.
